

The UNAOC has recently multiplied initiatives and projects aiming to promote a responsible and accurate coverage of migration and migrant-related stories in the media.

Seminars of editors in chief and experts

An international seminar in Paris, France, with 30 editors from countries across the Mediterranean. Participants came up with a list of solid guidelines for migration coverage.

To continue the momentum, the UNAOC held another seminar in Bern, Switzerland, to discuss migration coverage at the national level.

#CoveringMigration

-  A major social media campaign on Twitter and Facebook
-  How to improve the coverage of migration and migrant-related issues?
-  A campaign reaching more than 5 million people

 @UN: New this week via UNAOC: guidelines for journalists on #coveringmigration

 @UNAOC: The @AP uses illegal to refer to actions, not people. What is your newsroom's policy for #coveringmigration?

 @AmandaFigueras: We should show migrants as positive part of our society.

 @intancaroline21: Migration is the great human story, but it is not a single story: it is a different story for every human migrant.

Type of Migration per country

The world campaign Do One Thing for Diversity and Inclusion engages people around the world to do ONE thing in support of cultural diversity and inclusion, at the occasion of the World Day for Cultural Diversity on May 21st. Follow us on Facebook.

Data Journalism Project: Monitored word use during and after elections; defined migration coverage trends

Coming up: The UNAOC and the Panos Institute are launching the first ever glossary of migration-related terms dedicated specifically to journalists.
