Violent extremism has threatened the lives and stability of people all over the world; as well as challenging norms and development of communities. Some of the causes that result in intolerance, hatred, and extremism need to be explored from socio-economic viewpoint, including the role of education. The issues need to be investigated beyond the security aspect and try to tackle the root of the problem.

Extremism has no religion or community, single minded in its pursuit of goals through violent means that harm others. To efficiently address and tackle the threats posed by violent extremism, a holistic and preventive approach is crucial. Whilst our understanding of the drivers of violent extremism have improved, there is a need to adapt and refine responses and tools that allow a rapid reaction to an evolving threat, which has a devastated countries and the global order. Youth, with their energy and creativity, have the huge potential to contribute to peace and security and sustainable development. However, they often lack access to quality education and training, which would allow them to channel these virtues into a positive contribution to their communities.

Quality education is the basis for all development, whether social, economic, or political. Education gives people hope, instills tolerance, critical thinking, and as a result political stability. In such a globalized world, the solution for our challenges is also global and goes beyond political borders. Quality education encourages global citizenship while still respecting local values and traditions, promotes human rights, the rule of law and sustainable development, has the potential to allow younger generations to meet their aspirations.

A global dialogue needs to occur with political and non-political actors fostering the right eco-system for freedom of expression, employment, justice, and social development to counter extremism addressing holistic outlook of causes, effects, and possible solutions. Most solutions and discussions around extremism are focused on security related matters. There is a need to explore the positive role education can play in reinforcing inclusiveness and diversity.

Root causes of violent extremism
- Almost two decades since the "Global War on Terror”—successes and failures. We have had a lot of tactical successes that amount to strategic failures. We have lost in the battle of ideas.
- Drivers of Extremism: conflict, geopolitics, sectarianism, the cyclical nature of terrorism.
  Sectarianism has become the geopolitical currency of the Middle East and the vacuums left by regional conflicts are safe haven for terrorists.
- Case Study: The current situation in Syria and al-Hol camp.
  How terrorist organizations, like ISIS, view children as the future of the movement and the responsibility of the international community to alleviate the conditions.
- Education as a key tool to Counter Violent Extremism.
  Diplomacy, smart aid, and education to equip the next generation with critical thinking is how we break the cycle of violence.
- Role of governments and interface with non-governmental agencies
BRIEF

Role of higher education institutes in countering violent extremism

- What efforts are higher education institutions providing through curriculum, content, teaching, collaborations, values, etc.
  - What they teach? (e.g., ranging from peace/human rights studies to courses on VE and CVE;
  - How they teach? (e.g., to encourage critical thinking and respect for the “other” and promotion of tolerance/understanding);
  - What they research? (e.g., both causes of and solutions to VE, leveraging the multi-disciplinary expertise that often exists within a university);
  - The non-academic environment (e.g., providing students extracurricular opportunities that contribute to PVE (either directly or indirectly) – this might include designing and testing student-led PVE interventions, facilitating internships/vocational training linked to PVE work, inviting speakers to campus who represent diverse viewpoints on a particular topic, connect student groups with local communities and civil society to organize cultural/arts/ sports or other programs workshops and social activities that promote peace, tolerance, understanding and moderation)
  - Training (e.g., this might include designing and delivering in-person or on-line PVE training for teachers, social workers, mental health professionals or other non-law enforcement practitioners)
  - Potentially sensitive role they play in identifying signs of radicalization to VE among their students and working, including with other entities, to address them – balancing the right to free speech with the obligation of universities to provide a safe/secure learning environment for the members of their community.
- What could be done at a global level

Role of digital media, communications, recruitment, etc. in countering violent extremism

- Discuss findings of the report ”Youth and violent extremism on social media: mapping the research” by UNESCO
- The report states that there are “insufficient studies that effectively address the role of communications in reinforcing or countering incitement for radicalization towards violent extremism”
- How could universities, research centers, think tanks and UN institutions work together to come up with a plan using social media outlets and digitization to detect and help in the prevention of violent extremism
- Should media and digital literacy curricula be incorporated at the core of educations system at all levels

Practical steps for academic entities to take in countering violent extremism

- Tools of prevention for academic entities
- Gaps in research and role of higher education institutions
- Do Tanks - Action Tanks - Conflict Transformation Tanks specific role
- UNESCO Concept Paper and HBKU position within Education City and collaboration with partner universities

Dr. Ahmad M. Hasnah
President
Hamad Bin Khalifa University

Dr. Ahmad M. Hasnah is the President of Hamad Bin Khalifa University (HBKU), a member of Qatar Foundation for Education, Science, and Community Development (QF) in Doha, Qatar.

Since he joined QF in 2002, Dr. Hasnah has been a key player in the development of Education City— a unique hub for knowledge and education through partnerships with world-class educational and research institutions.

In his roles as the Director of Academic Affairs and later on as the Associate Vice President for Higher Education, Dr. Hasnah has been actively involved in the negotiations which led to many of the QF partner universities joining Qatar Campus', including, Texas A&M University, Carnegie Mellon University, and Georgetown University.

Following his appointment as the Executive Vice-President and Provost of HBKU in May 2014, he has been instrumental in the establishment of six colleges namely, the College of Islamic Studies, College of Humanities and Social Sciences, the College of Science and Engineering, College of Law, College of Health and Life Sciences, and the College of Public Policy, which offer interdisciplinary graduate and PhD programs.

Dr. Hasnah has contributed to the Research and Development Enterprise of QF and served as a member of the Steering committee of the Qatar National Research Fund and the QF Strategic Research Board. Moreover, he is currently overseeing three research institutes under HBKU that focus on Qatar's Grand Challenges in the areas of energy and environment, biomedical and computing.

He has also taken part in the conception and shaping of the World Innovation Summit for Education (WISE), a unique global event which aims to create an international multi-disciplinary platform to shape education models, explore ground-breaking innovations and take concrete steps in making significant improvements to worldwide education in the 21st century.

He is on many Joint Advisory Boards, including Weill Cornell Medicine-Qatar and Northwestern University in Qatar. He was a member of the Joint Advisory Boards of Texas A&M University at Qatar, Carnegie Mellon University in Qatar and Virginia Commonwealth University in Qatar for the past 10 years and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Community College of Qatar for the past 6 years.

Dr. Hasnah has been a panelist at many international conferences such as the NAFSA Conference in the US, Going Global Forum, SCUP North Atlantic Regional Conference, and Reinventing Higher Education Conference at IE University in Madrid.

He holds a Masters degree (1993) and PhD (1996) in Computer Science from the Illinois Institute of Technology, USA. He graduated from Qatar University in 1990 with a Bachelor of Science in Mathematics and Physics.
Mr. Ali Soufan
Chief Executive Officer of The Soufan Group and Founder of The Soufan Center

Mr. Soufan is a former FBI Supervisory Special Agent who investigated and supervised highly sensitive and complex international terrorism cases, including the East Africa Embassy Bombings, the attack on the USS Cole, and the events surrounding 9/11. Mr. Soufan also serves as a member of the Homeland Security Advisory Council. He is the author of the newly released “Anatomy of Terror: From the Death of bin Laden to the Rise of the Islamic State” and The New York Times Top 10 Bestseller, “The Black Banners: The Inside Story of 9/11 and the War Against al Qaeda,” winner of the 2012 Ridenhour Book Prize.

He is a leading national security and counterterrorism expert, and continues to play a significant advisory role on today’s most sensitive issues. Mr. Soufan had a distinguished career in the FBI, including serving on the Joint Terrorism Task Force, FBI New York Office, where he coordinated both domestic and international counterterrorism operations. He often operated out of hostile environments and carried out sensitive extraterritorial missions and high-level negotiations, and has received numerous awards and commendations for his counter-terrorism work. These include the Director of the FBI’s Award for Excellence in Investigation, the Respect for Law Enforcement Award for “relentless pursuit of truth and bringing terrorist subjects before the bar of justice,” and a commendation from the U.S. Department of Defense that labeled him “an important weapon in the ongoing war on terrorism.”

Mr. Soufan has testified before the U.S. Congress, Presidential Commissions, the British Parliament’s Home Affairs Committee, and appeared as an expert panelist and as a guest speaker at international security forums, both in the U.S. and abroad. He has been profiled, interviewed and has also contributed to leading shows and publications worldwide, including 60 Minutes, Frontline, The New Yorker, Newsweek, The Washington Post, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Straits Times, Der Spiegel and Asharq Alawsat, along with news programs and specials on the BBC, CNN, MSNBC, and Fox News. Mr. Soufan’s work has also been detailed in several non-fiction books, including “The Looming Tower” by Lawrence Wright, which was adapted into a 10-part Hulu television series “The Looming Tower” in 2018.

Of Mr. Soufan’s book, “Anatomy of Terror” (Published May 2, 2017, by WW Norton), The New York Times wrote: “Soufan writes with immense knowledge and authority ... 'Anatomy of Terror' not only tells a gripping story but is filled with insights that put today's terror attacks by the Islamic State and Al Qaeda in perspective with the history and complicated geopolitics of the region.” Mr. Soufan is an Honors graduate from Mansfield University of Pennsylvania where he received undergraduate degrees in International Studies and Political Science. He is a Magna Cum Laude graduate of Villanova University where he received a Master of Arts in International Relations.
Dr. Allan E. Goodman is the sixth President of the Institute of International Education, the leading not-for-profit organization in the field of international educational exchange and development training. IIE conducts research on international academic mobility and administers the Fulbright program sponsored by the United States Department of State, as well as over 200 other corporate, government and privately-sponsored programs. Since its founding in 1919, the Institute has also rescued scholars threatened by war, terrorism, and repression. Rescued scholars and other alumni of Institute-administered programs, as well as IIE trustees and advisors, have won 78 Nobel Prizes.

Previously, Dr. Goodman was Executive Dean of the School of Foreign Service and Professor at Georgetown University. He is the author of books on international affairs published by Harvard, Princeton and Yale University presses. Dr. Goodman served as Presidential Briefing Coordinator for the Director of Central Intelligence in the Carter Administration. Subsequently, he was the first American professor to lecture at the Foreign Affairs College of Beijing, helped create the first U.S. academic exchange program with the Moscow Diplomatic Academy for the Association of Professional Schools of International Affairs, and developed the diplomatic training program of the Foreign Ministry of Vietnam.

Dr. Goodman has served as a consultant to Ford Foundation, the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation, the United States Information Agency, and IBM. He is a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, a founding member of the World Innovation Summit for Education (WISE), Co-President of the Partner University Fund (PUF) Grant Review Committee, and a member of the Jefferson Scholarship selection panel. He also serves on the Council for Higher Education Accreditation International Quality Group Advisory Council and the Board of Trustees of the Education Above All Foundation.

Dr. Goodman has a Ph.D. in Government from Harvard, an M.P.A. from the John F. Kennedy School of Government and a B.S. from Northwestern University. He also holds honorary degrees from Chatham, Susquehanna, and Toyota universities; Richmond, The American International University in London; Dickinson, Middlebury, Mount Ida, and Ramapo colleges; The State University of New York; and the University of York. He has received awards from Georgetown, Johns Hopkins, South Florida, and Tufts universities, the Légion d’honneur from France, and the Royal Norwegian Order of Merit. He was awarded the inaugural Gilbert Medal for Internationalization by Universitas 21.
Andrew Rich became Dean of the Colin Powell School for Civic and Global Leadership at The City College of New York in February 2019. With 4,000 students, the Colin Powell School is home to the social science departments at CCNY as well as the core leadership development and public service programs of City College. Dean Rich was previously Chairman of the Political Science Department at CCNY as well as Deputy Director and Director of Programs at the Colin Powell Center, the precursor to the Colin Powell School.

Dean Rich has spent his entire career working on the development and promotion of public service opportunities among young people. From 2009-2011, as President and CEO of the Roosevelt Institute, he launched the institute’s think tank and oversaw efforts to expand and strengthen its Campus Network. From 2011-2019, he was Executive Secretary and CEO of the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation, which provides merit-based Truman Scholarships to college students who plan to attend graduate school in preparation for careers as public service leaders.

Rich is Chairman of the board of Friends of the Truman Foundation. He is the author of Think Tanks, Public Policy, and the Politics of Expertise and has written about the role of think tanks and foundations in American politics and policymaking. Along with CCNY, he previously taught political science at Wake Forest University. He is a graduate of the University of Richmond. He received his PhD in political science from Yale University.

Daniel Benjamin is the Norman E. McCulloch Jr. Director of the John Sloan Dickey Center for International Understanding. Prior to joining the Dickey Center, in 2012, Daniel Benjamin served as Ambassador-at-Large and Coordinator for Counterterrorism at the U.S. State Department. In that position, he was the principal advisor to Secretary of State Hillary Clinton on counterterrorism. Ambassador Benjamin was the longest serving coordinator for counterterrorism since that position was created, and during his tenure, the Office of the Coordinator was elevated to become the Bureau of Counterterrorism. Prior to joining the Obama Administration, Benjamin was a senior fellow in Foreign Policy Studies and director of the Center on the United States and Europe at the Brookings Institution. From 2001 to 2006, he was a senior fellow at the Center for Strategic and International Affairs in Washington, and prior to that, he was a Jennings Randolph Fellow at the United States Institute of Peace. During more than five years on the National Security Council staff in the 1990s, Benjamin served as a foreign policy speechwriter and Special Assistant to President Bill Clinton and as director for transnational threats.

Benjamin has written extensively on terrorism, U.S. foreign policy and international affairs. He co-wrote The Age of Sacred Terror (2002), which was awarded the Arthur Ross Prize of the Council on Foreign Relations, the largest American prize for a work on international affairs, and was named a New York Times Notable Book and a Washington Post Best Book of 2002. The Next Attack: The Failure of the War on Terror and a Strategy for Getting it Right (2005), which he also co-authored, was named a best book of the year by The Washington Post and The Financial Times and a finalist for the Lionel Gelber Prize. He is the editor of two other books, Europe 2030 and America and the World in the Age of Terror: A New Landscape in International Relations.

Benjamin began his career as a journalist and held positions as Germany bureau chief for The Wall Street Journal, and Germany correspondent for TIME Magazine. He holds degrees from Oxford, where he was a Marshall Scholar, and Harvard, where he completed his undergraduate work, graduating magna cum laude.
Consul General David Gill, German Consulate General New York

Consul General David Gill, German Consulate General New York. Born in 1966, Gill grew up in a protestant minister’s family in Herrnhut, Saxony, in former East Germany. He was denied a higher education by the communist regime for political reasons. Instead, he trained and worked as a plumber before joining a preparatory protestant school and later the theological seminary of the Protestant Church in Berlin-Brandenburg. In 1990, he initially was the chairman of Normannenstrasse Citizens’ Committee which oversaw the dissolution of the Ministry of State Security at the Stasi headquarters and served as the secretary of the Special Committee for the dissolution of the Stasi of the East German Parliament. After reunification, Gill became spokesman and head of the research division of the Federal Commissioner for the Stasi-Files before studying law in Berlin and Philadelphia. After holding positions in the Federal Ministry of the Interior and at the Commissioner for Data Protection and Freedom of Information in Berlin, he served as the Deputy Representative of the Council of the Protestant Church in Germany to the Federal Republic of Germany and the European Union. During Federal President Joachim Gauck’s term from 2012-2017, he was state secretary and chief of staff of the President. Since August 2017, he has been the German Consul General in New York.
Mr. Cassinello is a Law graduate from the Universidad Autónoma de México and from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid, and he holds a Master in Laws from Harvard University. He was assistant professor in Theory of the State and International Law at the Universidad Autónoma de México, and of Political Law and Theory of the State at the Universidad de Madrid (1961-1963).

He joined the Ministry of Foreign Affairs where he served in numerous functions: Deputy-Director for Africa, Director-General for International Organizations and Conferences, Director-General for Latin-American Affairs and Director of Planning Staff. He has had a number of Embassy postings, including Chargé d’Affaires in Addis Abeba and Dar es Salaam, Cultural Attaché in Mexico, Spanish Ambassador in Angola and Mexico, and Consul General in New York and Ambassador at large for North American Affairs. From 1985 to 1992, Emilio Cassinello was President of the Board of the EXPO’92, S.A. and Commissioner General of the Universal Exposition of Seville, 1992.

He is Vice-president of the Euroamerica Foundation; Founding Member and First Secretary General of the US-Spain Council; Member of the Scientific Council of the Real Instituto Elcano; Honorary Fellow at the Foreign Policy Association in New York; Member of the Advisory Council of Casa Árabe; Trustee of the Picasso Museum Foundation in Malaga. Mr. Jacques Dubucs
Scientific Director of the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences
Ministry of Higher Education and Research and Innovation of France

Senior Scientist at CNRS, Head of the IHPST, Scientific Director of the Department "Human and Social Sciences" at the Ministry of Higher Education and Research.

His work mainly deals with history and philosophy of logic. For about twelve years his main domain of research is non-classical logics and cognitive science, specially analysis and formalization of actual reasoning. His recent work concerns logic of “feasibility”, namely formal description of “really or humanly achievable” processes, in contrast to processes that can only be performed “in principle” as described in the Turing tradition. Another part of his work is devoted to philosophical foundations of probability, specially in the "logical" perspective opened by Carnap in the sixties.

EDUCATE TO ERADICATE:
THE ROLE OF EDUCATION IN TACKLING VIOLENT EXTREMISM
Dr. John Sexton
President Emeritus, New York University
Dean Emeritus
Benjamin F. Butler Professor of Law

John Sexton, the fifteenth president of New York University, joined NYU School of Law’s faculty in 1981, was named the Law School’s dean in 1988, and became the University's president in 2002. Before coming to NYU, Sexton served as law clerk to Chief Justice Warren Burger of the United States Supreme Court (1980-1981), and to Judges David Bazelon and Harold Leventhal of the United States Court of Appeals (1979-1980). Mr. Moratinos has committed his professional and political career to international relationships and development cooperation, notably as Minister of Foreign Affairs and Cooperation of Spain from 2004 to 2010. During his tenure as Foreign Minister, Spain presided over the UN Security Council in 2004, held the chairmanships-in-office of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), the Council of Europe and the Council of the European Union. Mr. Moratinos succeeded in fostering the implementation of the Treaty of Lisbon and the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union.

With the Mediterranean in mind, H.E. Miguel Ángel Moratinos was appointed Deputy Director General for Northern Africa (1987-1991) and then Director of the Institute of Cooperation with the Arab World (1991-1993). After his tenure at the Institute, he was appointed Director General of Foreign Policy for Africa and the Middle East, holding the position from 1993 to 1996. The highlight of his tenure was the organization of the historic Middle East Peace Conference in Madrid in 1992.

As Spain’s Ambassador in Israel from July to December 1996, Mr. Moratinos succeeded in fostering a strong network with both the Israelis and Palestinians. Building on that success, the European Union appointed him as the EU Special Representative for the Middle East Peace Process from December 1996 to June 2003. During this period, he promoted Peace Agreements and carried out actions on behalf of the EU strengthening the Arab-Israeli dialogue.

As a true believer in the value of multilateralism, Mr. Moratinos helped in the creation and launching of the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations in 2005. He also supported the Group of Friends for UN Reform. Moreover, he contributed to the creation of innovative programmes for development, healthcare and women empowerment within the United Nations system. Mr. Moratinos promoted new projects and funds for water and sanitation in Latin American development countries. During his tenure as Spain’s top diplomat, he doubled Official Development Assistance funds and placed Spain as the sixth donor in the United Nations system.

Following the end of his term in office in 2010, Mr. Moratinos engaged in parliamentary activities until November 2011. During that period, he ran to be elected Director-General of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) with an agenda aiming at mobilizing international action towards the struggle against hunger and poverty, the promotion of food security and the right to food.

In January 2012, he joined the team of the Global Dry Land Alliance in Qatar promoting this international treaty for food security in more than 15 countries...
H.E. Mr. Miguel Ángel Moratinos
Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations,
High Representative for the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations

member-countries in all continents. From 2012 to 2013 he was member of the High-level Advisory panel of the president of the 67th Session of the UN General Assembly.

Prior to his appointment as High-Representative, Mr. Moratinos was the Honorary Chairman of the CIRSD Board of Advisers (Center for International Relations and Sustainable Development), Senior Advisor of Sustainable Development Solutions Network of the Earth Institute at Columbia University and member of the Leadership Council of the UN Sustainable Development Solutions Network (SDSN). In Spain, he also held honorary positions as the President of REDS, the Spanish network for Sustainable development affiliated to SDSN and the President of the Trobades Literàries Mediterràneas Association and the Trobades Albert Camus Award. In recognition for his distinguished achievements,

Mr. Moratinos received honorary doctorates from the Universities of Saint-Petersburg, Malta, as well as Ben-Gurion, Al-Quds and Tel Aviv universities.

Most recently on 19 March 2019, Mr. Moratinos was awarded with the “League of Arab States” Award by Mr. Ahmed Abulgheit, the Secretary-General of the League of Arab States in a ceremony in Madrid in recognition for his role in strengthening Arab-Spanish relations.

Born in 1951, Mr. Moratinos graduated in Law and Political Sciences at the University Complutense in Madrid and then in Diplomatic Studies at the Spanish Diplomatic School.

Mr. Wilcox graduated from Tufts University with honors in political science and Spanish.
Dr. Raffi Gregorian brings to the United Nations over 33 years of academic, diplomatic and military experience in counter-terrorism and international peace and security. Until September 2019, when he was appointed Deputy to the Under-Secretary-General of the United Nations Office of Counter-Terrorism (UNOCT), he was Director of Multilateral Affairs in the Bureau of Counterterrorism of the United States Department of State.

Prior to that, Dr. Gregorian held different senior positions in the United States Department of State, including Acting Deputy Coordinator for Counterterrorism and Director for the Office of Peace Operations, Sanctions, and Counterterrorism from 2012-2015. In this latter capacity, he initiated the first new U.S. peacekeeping policy in 25 years, led a number of important peacekeeping reforms, and helped secure full funding for the UN peacekeeping budget. Dr. Gregorian’s field experience includes leading two multinational missions in Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH) as well as military service in both BiH and in Kosovo. In BiH he was Principal Deputy High Representative (2007-2010) and for several months also Acting High Representative as well as Supervisor of Brčko District (2006-2010), having also served as Political Advisor for NATO Headquarters Sarajevo and Co-Chairman of the BiH Defense Reform Commission (2004-2006).

His previous State Department service included serving as chief of staff to the Special Adviser to the President and Secretary of State for Kosovo and Dayton Implementation and Acting Director for Kosovo Implementation. Dr. Gregorian holds a Doctorate in International Relations and Strategic Studies from the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies, a Masters of Arts in War Studies from King’s College London, and a Bachelor of Arts with Honours in History from the University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of several academic publications.
Dr. Weine is Professor of Psychiatry at the UIC College of Medicine, where he also Director of Global Medicine and Director of the Center for Global Health. For 30 years he has been conducting research both with refugees and migrants in the U.S. and in post-conflict countries, focused on mental health, health, and violence prevention. His research mission is to develop, implement, and evaluate psychosocial interventions that are feasible, acceptable, and effective with respect to the complex real-life contexts where at-risk populations live. This work has been supported by multiple grants from the NIMH, NICHD, DHS, NIJ, and other state, federal, and private funders, all with collaboration from community partners. This work has resulted in more than 130 publications and two books: When History is a Nightmare: Lives and Memories of Ethnic Cleansing in Bosnia-Herzegovina (Rutgers, 1999) and Testimony and Catastrophe: Narrating the Traumas of Political Violence(Northwestern, 2006). He has been awarded two Career Scientist Awards: "Services Based Research with Refugee Families" from the National Institute of Mental Health and "Labor Migration and Multilevel HIV Prevention” from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development.
