

The High Representative for the United Nations Alliance of Civilizations (UNAOC), Mr. Miguel Moratinos, and the Director-General of the International Organization for Migration (IOM), Mr. Vitorino, announced the winners of their joint initiative, the PLURAL+ Youth Video Festival, during an annual awards ceremony that took place virtually for the first time. The UN Under-Secretary-General for Global Communications, Ms. Melissa Fleming, also participated in the event, which opened with a musical performance by internationally-acclaimed Spanish musician Rafael Aguirre. Selected for their coverage of migration, diversity, social inclusion, and xenophobia, the winning videos were chosen among hundreds of submissions. (4 December)

“This year, we received more than 500 videos from more than 70 countries. That is yet another proof of youth’s resilience and strength, even during challenging times. Their conviction that the world can and should be a better place, and their creative vision in addressing the pressing social issues of migration, social inclusion, diversity, and xenophobia, are the essence behind the production of these inspiring and thought-provoking short films.”

Mr. Moratinos addressed the 2020 Lisbon Forum organized by the North-South Center of the Council of Europe on “Learning from our Global Challenges: Enhancing Solidarity”. In his remarks, Mr. Moratinos stressed the essential role of intercultural and interreligious dialogue against isolation, mistrust, and confrontation and as the most powerful vector for conflict prevention and conflict resolution. “History has shown that dialogue is not a simple process, but that if we fail to teach and cultivate it, the situation can give way to a monologue or to mutism, which is conducive to conflict and violent extremism. As we prepare to rebuild a better world, I firmly believe that cultural diversity and the invocation of spirituality are crucial components that should be included in our diplomatic toolbox,” he stated.
